Hi Rusty,

Sorry, Kate and I already spoke. I explained to her that DPR doesn't have much information on wildlife incidents through our official adverse effects reporting system (that mirrors 6(a)(2)) and that most of our data has come from DFW and other wildlife rehabilitation organizations. She said she plans to speak to Stella McMillin at DFW. We discussed how DPR (Debbie Daniels, the author of the white paper) has received additional data from DFW since the draft white paper was written. Kate said she was going to get in touch with you to figure out the best way for DPR to get this more recent necropsy data to all of you.

I also sent Kate the draft white paper and gave her an update on where we are with the rulemaking proposal.

Thanks,
Ann

Good Morning Ann,

I hope you have had a great week!

I really appreciate the heads up, update and the docs. As Kate may have explained, she (and a few others) is working with our general council on tracking down external witnesses for the rodenticide hearing against Reckitt. I have asked Kate if I can participate on the call.

Best,
Rusty

Hi Rusty,

I just got an email from Kate Bouve and she wants to talk to me about the rodenticide wildlife incident data DPR has on file. I will be putting this information together for her so wanted to keep you in the loop.

Also, I'm not sure if you ever received DPR's draft "white paper" analyzing the incident data we received from the California Department of Fish & Wildlife (formally known as Department of Fish & Game) and other wildlife rehabilitation groups to support DFW's request for DPR to designate all second generation anticoagulants as California restricted materials? The draft was never officially released to the public, but we have sent it out to various stakeholders. The document went through an external peer review and DPR is currently going through the comments and making revisions to the draft. I am attaching the white paper so you have it in your files.

We have received additional data from DFW since the white paper was completed, so I will talk to Kate about this as well.

I am also attaching what our current proposed regulations look like. I believe our Asst. Director, Chuck Andrews, discussed this language with Rick Keigwin on his recent trip out to DC. We anticipate issuing a formal notice of proposed rulemaking sometime this summer.

Please let me know if you have any questions or need additional information.

Thanks,
Ann
